MEMBERSHIP NOTES & TERMS

1. Nature of Membership

The membership categories and benefits described in this brochure are Programmatic Memberships of CDCPIndia/buildingSMART. They are designed to provide individuals and organizations with access to professional networks, knowledge programmes, industry initiatives, events and member engagement opportunities.

2. Society Membership & Governance

Programmatic Membership is distinct from Society Membership constituted under the governing documents of The Confederation of Digital Construction Practitioners (India) (CDCPIndia). Programmatic Membership does not, by itself, create an entitlement to voting rights or membership of the Society's legislative or governing bodies. Through active participation and engagement, members may be considered for opportunities to become part of the Society's legislative or governance structure through the Executive Committee, Chapters or other applicable Society bodies, in accordance with the Society's governing documents and prescribed processes.

3. MNC & Member Participation

MNC Members and Members may be offered the opportunity to nominate a suitable individual from their organization, or recommend an appropriate individual from another organization, for consideration for participation in relevant committees or Society bodies. Any appointment and the associated governance or voting rights will be governed by the applicable Society rules, eligibility requirements and approval process.

4. Membership Eligibility & Classification

Membership applications are subject to verification and acceptance by CDCPIndia. Organizational membership categories will ordinarily be determined based on the eligibility and turnover criteria stated in the programme. CDCPIndia may request reasonable supporting information to confirm the appropriate category.

5. Membership Validity & Renewal

Unless specifically stated otherwise, Programmatic Membership is valid for one year from the date of activation. Benefits are available during the active membership period. Renewal will be based on the membership categories, fees, eligibility criteria and benefits applicable at the time of renewal.

6. Membership Fees & Concessions

Membership fees are subject to applicable taxes, if any. A 50% concession on the Individual Membership fee is available to students, women, defence personnel, teachers and government staff. Government bodies, NGOs, non-profit organizations and academic institutions are eligible for a 25% concession on the applicable organizational membership category. Eligibility for concessions may be verified before activation.

7. Discounts & Promotional Offers

Membership discounts, concessional rates, promotional offers, campaign discounts and other special offers cannot be combined or clubbed unless expressly stated otherwise. Where more than one eligible discount or offer is available, the member may choose the single option that provides the greatest benefit. Discounts are ordinarily applied to the prevailing standard price of the relevant offering.

8. Member Benefits

Complimentary passes, certifications, employee benefits, member engagement allocations and similar benefits are available during the applicable membership period and are subject to the conditions, availability and eligibility requirements of the respective programme. Unused benefits are not convertible into cash or adjustable against membership fees and do not ordinarily carry forward to the next membership period.

9. Participation & Knowledge Opportunities

Working groups, technical initiatives, publications, speaking opportunities, roundtables and other knowledge-sharing activities are intended to encourage active member participation. References to eligibility, preference, priority consideration or priority participation indicate an opportunity for consideration and will depend on relevance, expertise, programme requirements, available positions and the applicable Society process.

10. Employee & Representative Benefits

Benefits extended to employees or nominated representatives of an organizational member are available to bona fide employees or authorized representatives of that organization, unless otherwise stated. "Employees Covered under Member Engagement" refers to nominated representatives who may participate in applicable engagement activities and does not, by itself, constitute separate Society Membership.

11. Member Recognition & Use of Logo

Active members may use the applicable CDCPIndia/buildingSMART member recognition or member logo in accordance with the prescribed brand guidelines. Member recognition reflects participation in the membership programme and should not be represented as certification, accreditation or endorsement of a member's products or services.

12. Vendor Neutrality & Independence

CDCPIndia remains a non-government, non-commercial and vendor-neutral body. Membership, sponsorship or participation does not provide preferential treatment to a member's products, technologies, services or commercial interests. Technical positions and Society initiatives will continue to follow the applicable independent and collaborative processes of CDCPIndia.

13. General

Individual Membership is personal to the registered member, while Organizational Membership belongs to the registered organization. Benefits are not transferable except where nomination of an employee or representative is expressly permitted. Members and their representatives are expected to follow the applicable Code of Conduct, confidentiality requirements, brand guidelines and other Society policies. CDCPIndia may reasonably update membership benefits or programme formats from time to time. In matters relating to Society Membership, voting rights, committee appointments or governance, the registered governing documents of the Society will prevail.
